Your wedding day:

When choosing a photographer for the most important day of your life you need to find someone that fits your needs and personality. Your photographer will be with you almost as much as your close family and friends so it is essential that the photographer is courteous, professional, helpful, and kind with the ability to be obsequious and make your day as easy as possible.

I have found that as a woman photographer I put the bride at ease as I candidly capture her getting ready for the big day or while she poses for formal photos. As a mom I have the patience and fun techniques to get children involved to smile and relax. Because I have been a former stressed out bride I go above and beyond just taking photos; I will essentially do whatever is needed to keep the bride and groom calm and having fun while photographing the spirit and beauty of their day.

Another point to consider is the photographers' equipment; as it is very important to capturing your photos. I offer state of the art portable lighting, backdrops, professional digital cameras and media cards and an assistant always on hand to help.

I also encourage and enjoy engagement sessions. This time together creates beautiful keepsake photos for display, gifts, invitations, announcements, save the date post cards...But it also allows me to get a better feel for the couple and how they feel in front of the camera, and what their style is. Vice versa, this allows a couple to know me and feel comfortable with me behind the camera so that the couple is at ease on their wedding day. This is why I include this service in my top wedding packages.

Below is one of the many testimonies that I have received from former clients:

July 14, 2005

We had the pleasure of working with Jamy Sullivan Photography for our wedding last October. Jamy was professional and courteous throughout the process, willing to both listen to our ideas and contribute her own. I appreciated Jamy's flexibility in adapting to our wishes, in terms of location shots and photo packages; her prices are fair and affordable.

But what has impressed me, my husband and our families and friends the most is Jamy's artistic eye. The album she put together for my husband and I is a work of art: it captures beautifully our spirit as a couple and the uniqueness of our wedding and reception locations. We, our families, and bridal party appear natural and relaxed in photos, in no small part because of Jamy's easy-going manner and creative approach as a photographer. I would recommend Jamy to anyone in need of a photographer, particularly those planning a wedding. Christina Foust, Loveland, Colorado

Wedding Photography Styles

The photos from your wedding day should also reflect your personality as a couple. Any or all of the wedding styles below can be accomplished. I usually incorporate all three unless otherwise directed by a couple.

Photojournalism Style Wedding Photography:

This is the latest trend. There is no directions given from the photographer, we are simply in the background to record events without any interaction. The problem with this purist approach is that if the wedding is not overly flamboyant the pictures may come across as uneventful.

Traditional Style Wedding Photography:

This is a very popular choice. It involves a large number of planned portraits and group shots along with informal wedding pictures. The family and bridal shots are normally shot in a pyramid shape or straight line.

Impressionistic Style Wedding Photography:

The posing is less structured and more artistic. Shots are like still photos from a movie or film that tells a story. This style has the appearance of photojournalism but involves input from the photographer for creative and illustrative photos.

Digital Photography:

Sullivan Photography is completely digital, this allows for easy versatility. Before digital photography it would cost more for black and white, antique-sepia look, special effects and the removal of unwanted blemishes. Now it is just a click away for the photographer. Some still charge more for these effects, but it is my desire that you are excited about your photos, so there is no additional charge for any of these services.

Time Frame:

Your wedding photos will be edited and the digital proofs placed on a CD for easy viewing within two weeks of your wedding date. After that I will work with the bride and groom to accomplish their masterpiece wedding album of their choice. As for the time frame on the day of your wedding, the more time I have with you and your guests the more opportunities we have to create the photos your heart desires, but I also have been photographing weddings long enough that I am creative while also being very efficient.
